Sundays will never be the same again...

Promoters du jour Warren M & Nick Shadow launch their brand new monthly clubnight 'The Playground' at Proud Galleries on 08/06/08 and every 2nd Sunday of the month thereafter.

The line up for the first installment of The Playground series is truly staggering featuring an afternoon session with the cream of London's Acoustic talent and rock burlesque show evolving into a full blown indie electro-riot as the sun sets and the horses go to sleep.

Kick back and soak up the sights and sounds of the acoustic lounge from 2pm with performances from hot new talent Kenny O' Connor, Joseph and the living legend that is Davey MacManus, frontman of Indie folk darlings The Crimea who have released three studio albums and toured with the likes of Regina Spektor, Billy Corgan, Kings Of Leon, Travis, Primal Scream, Stereophonics, Ash and Snow Patrol. Zelda Saint-Wild and the Glitter Kittens drop things down a gear with their unique rock burlesque show.

As the sun sets we flip the switch and things start to get a little more twisted. South London hipsters The Alps kick things off with songs as finely chiseled as their looks. Next up is London collective Wills and the Willing whose single 'Lipstick' features the Mercury, Brit and Grammy award nominated singer Tom McRae who will be performing with the band and to round things off we have one of the most hotly tipped bands around at the moment. Live electro sensations Fenech Soler are a must see, slipping enough pills into dance music's pint until it finds itself curled up in the corner of the room with rock's dangly bits in its mouth.

Proud is the only place to be on Sunday 08/06/08 – the event is being filmed so dress for excess – do it.
